

Creating with the Elements

THE STORR:

When you see these great rock formations, this is done with wind, water and Earth in agreement. We shape together. It is not just the wind that does this kind of shaping. We are all three in agreement. It is a piece of art that is done creatively with consciousness and agreement. That's why the impact is so enormous when you look upon it and you say, "That is so beautiful."

These great places that are sacred are sacred because they were done with consciousness of all four elements. They created with each other. It was not done to them. The water and the wind did not do this to the Earth. It did not make this shape by itself. It did not do it to this rock. This rock, with the fire growing, shaped it with the wind and the water.

Now, you must begin to look at yourself as the Earth and how does the wind and water play a part in your creation, in your life structure.

You are all the Earth. And the water and the wind is what you will create with. That will be your tool of creation.
