

The El Chaltén region, Patagonia 2013

NATURE BEING:

Most humans make life about humans. That is a failing. They forget how to create with other life forms. They look at a mountain and say, "It is a mountain. I am going to conquer it." If you have to conquer what is touching you, what is it you learn? You have learned that you must be superior. You learn not to learn.

That is one of the biggest failings of humans and where they have failed this planet. They have forgotten that this planet is their teacher and everything on it teaches in its own way. So, if we walk together then we speak together. I learn from you, you learn from me.

Everything in this range is alive. It reaches to the Sun. It lets the wind blow. The Being, the soul of Nature is here. There is a Spirit here that blends with Nature. Humans have forgotten how to blend with Nature.

What would you have to become if you let nature be part of you, so you will be part of Nature?

Nature doesn't separate life. It doesn't say "Oh you are a human. You are a duck." It sees life.

Now when you really connect with nature you let it inside of you. Breathe it in. You are a part of it always.

It is a Being of such magnitude that anything that has life has Nature. It is so multi-dimensional, so intricate that to breathe it into yourself is to bring in as many different life forms as possible or highlight them inside of you and to honor them.

It is more than connection. It is a living with Nature and breathing with Nature—that wonderful soul, multi-dimensional, strong, continuous energy.

© Donna Sarah Taylor